Failure To Reach Agreement Keeps Soft Coal Mines Idle

Soft Coal Miners Idle; Await New Wage Agreement

Union Leaders And Operators Fail As Yet To Agree On New Contract

SEEK COMPROMISE SO WORK CAN PROCEED

Estimate 320,000 Miners Are Affected—Not Strike Or Walkout, It Is Stressed

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 3.—Union leaders and operators today sought a compromise whereby the 320,000 idle miners in the Appalachian soft coal field could quickly resume work.

Work was suspended throughout the field this morning because of the failure of the United Mine Workers of America headed by John L. Lewis and the mine operators to reach agreement on a new wages and hour contract to replace the pact which expired at midnight Friday. The daily wage loss was estimated at $1,500,000.

Subcommittees representing both sides were scheduled to resume deliberations at 2 p. m. this afternoon at the Baltimore hotel.

Plea Ignored

Despite a plea from Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins late Saturday, the conferees were unable to agree on any contract formula at two sessions held Sunday. The two groups have been conferring for the past three weeks in New York City.

Miss Perkins revealed in her telegram that Lewis had yielded to the extent of agreeing to a continuation of the expired contract for another two year period with the condition that the operators grant a closed shop.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Pa New notes that a tree planting program is in progress at the Lawrence County home property. This will greatly enhance the appearance of this site.

Report is made to Pa New that one of the large trucks that hauls autos, which was empty at the time, got afire while on the New Castle-New Bedford road on Sunday afternoon. The machine was badly damaged.

Work is in progress on a parkway in the triangular section of ground at the intersection of highways at Parkstown Corners.

Plowing on Lawrence county farms seems to be well advanced despite the rather backward spring weather.

If autos that are owned in New Castle would carry a "New Castle" tag during the touring season that is about to start, the city would get a lot of widespread publicity throughout the entire country.

Among the new detours shown on the Detour Bulletin of the Pennsylvania State highway system is that on routes 422 and 19, from Portersville north to the junction of 19 and 422. Through traffic is detoured via Wurttemberg and Energy to route 422 east of New Castle, 22.1 miles of paved highway; traffic (Continued On Page Two)

Asserts U. S. "Isolationist" Policy Has Been Abandoned

LONDON, April 3.—The "isolationist" policy of the United States is a thing of the past, in the opinion of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Great Britain is depending on America to step into war-jittery Europe and lend her support in staying the dictator nations' "aggrandizement".

These views, which clearly indicate the extent to which Britain is depending on the non-isolationist stand of the United States, were ascertained today through a cumulative statement on Anglo-American relations.

Since assuming the premiership Chamberlain never has granted an on-the-record interview and all that has been known about his attitude toward America has been confined to fragmentary remarks in speeches.

To clarify the status of Anglo-American relations, as seen from London, International News Service submitted to 10 Downing street a statement which brought together all the prime minister's piecemeal declarations of the past three years.

Chamberlain was asked if the "cumulative" statement—surprising in nature as it clearly showed where America stood in the eyes of Britain—still represented his views.

Germany Sees Early Challenge To British Moves Against Reich

BERLIN, April 3.—British attempts to encircle the Reich are certain to meet an early challenge, not only in Europe, but in the "wobbly" British Empire, German quarters were convinced today.

Difficulties for Britain were seen as Chancellor Adolf Hitler prepared to return from his North Sea visit, where he warmed London of the Reich's strength.

Hitler On Cruise

After his speech at Wilhelmshaven "Strength-Through-Joy" steamer Robert Ley, and yesterday he visited Heligoland, the refortified island guarding the western entrance to the Kiel Canal.

The encircling movement against Germany, which now is bringing in Rumania as well as Poland, will have definite repercussions in all parts of the British Empire, according to the German view. One high authority said:

Council Receives Communications On Canal Project

One Favors And One Opposes Proposed Canal Construction

Two organizations during councilmanic session in City Hall today communicated with council in regard to the proposed Pittsburgh, Ohio river and Lake Erie canal. The Perry S. Gaston post, 343, American Legion, favors construction, and the Order of Railway Conductors, P. R. lines west, opposes construction of the canal.

The letters were received from Harold Blewitt, commander of the local post of the Legion, and W. T. Saul of the Order of Railway Conductors.

The Legion post believes the construction of the canal would be advantageous to employment, and the conductors believe the construction would prove detrimental to revenue of railways and injure railroad employment.

In behalf of the conductors Saul, who is general chairman of the organization, P. R. lines west, requested the soldiers to withdraw their recommendation that Congressman L. E. Graham, 26th district, boost the construction.

Saul asserted the council endorsed the proposal without calling a public hearing. He suggested this be done where the proposal could be aired.

The communications were placed on file.

Chamberlain Seeks To Form League To Preserve European Peace

WILL CONFER WITH POLISH MINISTER

Expect Britain Will Extend Military Support To Rumania, If Needed

LONDON, April 3.—Molding of an eight-state "league of nations for peace in Europe", held together by Anglo-French military guarantees, began today as Foreign Minister Josef Beck of Poland neared London for his highly-important visit.

Rumania was expected to become the second nation of eastern Europe to join that London-Paris "stop Hitler" front, since Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was due to advise the house of commons late today that Britain will give the same military support to Rumania as to Poland.

To Create League

Chamberlain's scheme, it was understood, is to create a "league" involving France, Britain, Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, and eventually the Soviet union. These nations would be tied by mutual pledges of military aid in the event of unprovoked aggression by Germany—bonds stronger than the one-sided guarantees proffered to Poland by France and England.

Col. Beck will arrive in time to hear Chamberlain clear up all doubts as to the unequal strength of the promises to Poland, and make an equally vigorous pledge to Rumania. The Polish foreign minister (Continued On Page Two)

District Miners Await Contract

Approximately 225,000 In Western Pennsylvania And West Virginia "Mark Time"

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, April 3.—With a minimum of excitement, approximately 225,000 bituminous coal miners in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia marked time today while their employers and union leaders sought to reach a contract agreement in New York.

Adhering to the United Mine Workers' old by-word, "No contract, no work", the coal diggers in this district failed to enter the pits this morning and will not do so until orders are received from union leaders. The old contract expired at midnight Saturday, but the shutdown did not become effective until today since Saturday was a union holiday.

Little or no excitement accompanied formal shutdown this morning because a peaceful plan had been prearranged by union men and their employers. Maintenance crews reported for work to keep the pits in shape for resumption of operations.

No comments were available because leading operators and district union leaders were attending the negotiations in New York.

Besides the 125,000 miners in western Pennsylvania and the 100,000 in West Virginia, about 100,000 others are affected elsewhere.

Torso Killer May Have Slain 13th

(International News Service)
CLEVELAND, April 3.—Discovery of a charred, amputated foot in a pile of debris on a city dump served as a grim reminder today that Cleveland's mad torso killer may have added No. 13 to his list of decapitation murders.

Coroner S. R. Gerber and other officials began exhaustive tests in an attempt to determine whether the foot was part of the body of another victim of the same madman responsible for at least 12 other murders during the last four years. There was some doubt that the new find could be definitely charged up to the torso killer.

Sink Freighter To Put Out Fire

NEWARK, N. J. April 3.—Efforts were to be made today to refloat the freighter Texan which was sunk in the wharf at the Newark tidewater terminal to stifle a stubborn fire that raged through its holds with damage estimated at $200,000.

Eleven firemen and a deck engineer were overcome during the blaze. Forty hoses were turned on full blast through holes cut in the hull with acetylene torches. Finally the hatchways and forward seaocks were opened, causing the bow to settle to the bottom.

PARIS, April 3.—Germany is preparing to announce on Wednesday or Thursday the rupture of the Anglo-German naval treaty, according to usually reliable diplomatic circles in Paris today.

Breaking of the pact whereby the Reich's naval strength is fixed at 35 per cent of that of Great Britain would be "a first measure of protest against the threat of encirclement" these diplomatic quarters asserted.

Warned of Step

(Background note: Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler in his speech at Wilhelmshaven last Saturday warned that Germany would not tolerate any policy by Britain and her allies intended to "intimidate" the Reich or to revise the pre-war world "encirclement" of Germany.)

Hitler was understood to mean that the Reich would take steps to prevent the creation of a ring of openly anti-Nazi nations around Germany through extension of the Anglo-French military guarantee to Poland and other nations, such as Rumania.

(London and Paris already are linked with Belgium, Holland and Switzerland, it was pointed out. (Continued On Page Two)

Denies Britain Seeks To Encircle Germany

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)
LONDON, April 3.—Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax today denied in the House of Lords that Great Britain is attempting to encircle Germany.

The British pledge of military aid in defense of Poland's independence, Halifax declared, was "not undertaken in a spirit of hostility to any country, but in the hope and belief that it would strengthen the cause of European peace and stability."

The foreign secretary's statement to the peers was a reply to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's declaration in his Wilhelmshaven speech Saturday that Germany would resist efforts to intimidate her or to renew the pre-war policy of "encirclement."

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Chain stores in Pennsylvania spent more than $20,000,000 a day for products of the state's farms and factories during the recent "Pennsylvania days" drive it was reported today by Fred W. Johnson, chairman of the campaign.

During the 10-day drive, chain stores spent $20,067,000, an increase of approximately 60 per cent over normal buying in the state for the period. After a hurried consultation while the horse sank still deeper in the mud, the firemen dug away enough of the ooze to run three separate lengths of hose under the animal. Then they took their stances in opposite sides of the ditch and organized a tug of war. 30 men to a side As they pulled the firehose taut, the horse was freed.

LONDON, April 3.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today strengthened Britain's pledge of military assistance to Poland by announcing to the house of commons that "there is no doubt at all" that Poland would resist aggression and that Britain and France would immediately go to her assistance.

Cheered by a great crowd in the house, the prime minister expressed surprise that the scope of his declaration of aid to Poland on Friday should have been misunderstood in any quarter.

"A declaration of that importance," he said, "is not concerned with some minor little frontier incident. It is concerned with bigger things which might lie behind a frontier incident."

Poland would resist

"If the independence of Poland should be threatened, there is no doubt at all that the Polish people would resist and France and England would immediately go to her assistance."

"German assurances have now been flung to the winds. That is the fact which has completely destroyed confidence and forced us to make the great departure announced Friday."

"I am not asserting that a German challenge has been made officially but it is no exaggeration to say that public opinion throughout the world has been profoundly shocked and alarmed."

There is no threat to Germany so long as Germany will be a good neighbor. I am no more a man of war today than I was in September. I have no intention or desire to treat (Continued On Page Two)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins today assumed the role of champion of "little business" by urging the government to establish elaborate research facilities for its benefit.

In a letter to the house interstate commerce committee, Hopkins endorsed the Sheppard-Robinson bill, with changes, providing for the establishment of research stations in cooperation with state universities.

The bill, as revised by Hopkins, would appropriate $2,000,000 for the fiscal year, $1,000,000 for the next three fiscal years, and $5,000,000 a year thereafter.

New Evidence In Plane Crash Theory

Crazed Man May Have Been Cause

Seventeen Lives Lost In Crash In Arkansas In 1936 In Disaster

FINDING OF GUN REVIVES THEORIES

(International News Service)
MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 3.—First tangible evidence in support of the theory that a mad man with a gun wrecked American Airlines' flagship, the Southern, near Goodwin, Ark., Jan. 14, 1936, with the loss of 17 lives, was in the hands of officials today.

A negro tenant farmer, Australia McKinney, 38, found a rusty .38-caliber automatic pistol on the farm of B. L. Hunt, about three miles from the scene of the crash and on direct line of the flight taken by the doomed plane. It was from the approximate spot where the gun was found that the plane began its long glide under full power, to crash in the nearby swamps.

Believed Bullet Hole

Testimony of farmers who saw the huge ship crash led to a later bureau of air commerce report that the plane was functioning perfectly and that "human elements" probably were the cause of the crash.

A mark in the fuselage, which looked like a bullet hole, led to the belief a passenger had gone berserk and shot both pilots Jerry Marshall and John Freeland.

Several vials of narcotics found among the wreckage of the plane added to the murder theory, which was given little official credence at the time of the investigation because of the absence of the gun.

While authorities agreed the new clue was significant, they expressed doubt that proof could be established at this late date that the pilots of the ship were murdered.

There were no cartridges in the gun, but these would have been ejected in firing of the weapon, authorities pointed out.

Hunt brought the gun to Memphis.

the miners as the continued efforts to agree on a new pact ended in stalemate. As word spread through the Appalachian field, centered chiefly in Pennsylvania and West Virginia and also to Alabama which was included in the now invalidated agreement the miners took it for granted there would be no work.

Lewis announced that as usual, maintenance crews will continue at their posts to keep the miners in condition for an immediate resumption of work.

Little apprehension of a coal shortage was felt by brother operators and miners. Major consumers such as utilities and railroads were reported to have as much as a 30 or 40 day supply on hand. There was a general feeling that a compromise agreement may be negotiated within the space of a few days.

No Enthusiasm

Miss Perkins' lengthy telegram failed to elicit enthusiasm from either side. The joint committee dispatched a brief reply informing her deliberations were being continued.

The last contract provided a basic wage of $6 a day for a 35-hour five-day week in the North and $5.60 in the South. According to information Miss Perkins reported receiving from Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey who was in New York, the miners had apparently abandoned their demand for a 50 cents a day pay raise and a 30-hour week while the operators had likewise apparently abandoned their request for a flat 50 cents a day reduction.

Beck On Way To London
Foreign Minister Josef Beck of Poland passed through Berlin on his way to London, and was met in a routine fashion by a German foreign office attaché. Beck, it was understood, will not see Chancellor Hitler when he returns to Warsaw later this week.

German quarters assumed that Beck would give his verbal approval of Britain's guarantee to Poland, but would make no written or public declaration.

Authorities well-qualified to speak said that Prime Minister Chamberlain's declaration on Polish independence would not have the slightest effect on Hitler's policies, and that there would be no deviation whatsoever from the Fuehrer's fundamental aims.

MAY ALIGN EIGHT NATIONS IN LEAGUE EFFORT FOR PEACE

will remain here four days for conferences planned long before Germany's coup in Czechoslovakia but which have taken on vastly new significance since then.

Immediately after the first talks between Beck and Chamberlain and Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, the British guarantees of Poland's independence will be implemented by naval, military, and air general staff conversations.

To Complete Program
Exactly what Britain and France will do for Poland in the event of war will be worked out, in the same manner as the British and French general staffs meet frequently to keep details of their armed cooperation up to date.

Guy Lechambre, French air minister, is coming to London today to discuss with Sir Kingsley Wood, British air secretary, a point plan to manufacture more airplanes.

Viscount Gort, chief of Britain's general staff, has just returned from Paris, where additional details of the number and type of troops that would be sent to France in case of war were discussed. He will participate in the Polish-French-British parleys here.

Viscount Gort's trip to Paris involved discussions of common defense in the light of the guarantees to Poland, as it became evident that the great German people otherwise than I would have our own people treated here.

Made Uncertainty
"But these recent happenings rightly or wrongly have made every state which is adjacent to Germany unhappy, anxious and uncertain about Germany's future intentions."

Refuting charges that Britain had turned a cold shoulder toward Soviet Russia, Chamberlain declared:

"We welcome cooperation with any country, whatever may be its internal system of government, not in aggression but in resistance to aggression."

"I trust," the prime minister went on, "that our action—which has been begun but not concluded—will prove to be a turning point not toward war which wins nothing, cures nothing and ends nothing, but toward a more wholesome era when reason will take the place of force, when threats will make way for cool and well marshalled arguments."

The prime minister referred to his hope that the agreements taken to safeguard the independence of the countries "bordering Germany" might never be called into operation, and that Europe might gradually simmer down into a state of quietude when the existence of the agreements might be forgotten.

GOING AROUND THE BUSH

THE fundamental inability of New Deal planning to go to the root of the depression evil and its seeking to cure economic ills by encircling the bush rather than getting at the cause of the matter is indicated by the proposal of Senator Mead, of New York, for the insurance of loans by banks to small business. The proposed measure provides that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to insure banks against any losses which they might be called on to sustain in lending money to small business for the purposes of expanding plants and increasing production. In short the taxpayers would guarantee loans made by banks to small business men for the purposes of increasing private payrolls through expansion.

There can be no question that business has been hampered in its efforts toward expansion. But the fundamental cause of this is not the inability to get loans. It is in part the general uncertainty of the business picture due to expanding national indebtedness and the prospect of higher taxes, and in part the general tax burdens which business now has to bear.

When the excess profits tax was passed one of the chief criticisms brought against it was that it would hamper expansion or business because business would not have the funds with which to expand. The tax has been modified but still remains on the statute books. Now the New Dealers would seek to make up for the drying up of earnings and consequent lack of expansion by lending more money to business and calling on the government to guarantee the banks against loss.

Wouldn't it be much simpler to readjust the tax load and give the business man an opportunity to earn money of his own with which to expand rather than to make government money available to him? It is true that tax modification in itself wouldn't furnish the remedy but, coupled with new fiscal policies taking the government out of business and making a move toward retrenchment and a balanced budget it would go a long way toward making loans to business guaranteed by the government unnecessary.

After all, what good will it do to ask business to expand and increase its production unless there is some market for the goods which business is called on to produce? We have enough surpluses now, as it is. What we need more is a sound and genuine move toward recovery, built on a firm foundation. The way to get this is to return to sound economics, to get our national house in order rather than to lend money to small business to produce wares for which there is no market.

WHY NOT SEND THEM BACK HOME?

The bills introduced in congress for deportation of aliens advocating a change in our form of government are drastic compared with the present law, which imposes this penalty only on those urging overthrow of the government by violent means.

No good citizen objects to that provision, which ought to be still more vigorously enforced. But so insidious are modern methods of foreign propaganda that agents of alien governments, who have obtained admission to this country, are able to keep within the letter of the law and yet work serious mischief.

In the present state of world affairs we cannot afford to allow these virtual enemies to roam at large in America and preach their pernicious doctrines. The Russian government is formally pledged to abstain from hostile propaganda in this country. That promise was broken long ago. Agents from Moscow are constantly extolling the alleged virtues of Communism and drawing unfavorable comparisons between that system and true Americanism.

The activities of these propagandists and of the agents of other anti-American forms of government as well as an insult to all law-abiding Americans and a standing affront to the religious faiths which they hold dear.

A howl will go up about suppressing freedom of speech. But this is no time for handling these miscreants with kid gloves. The pending legislation will deprive no American citizen of any of his liberties, but our government has the right to deal firmly with foreign foes within its household and to send them packing back home where they belong.

Still, if you never remove your hat in an elevator while in New York, nobody will know you're a kink.

Better not be scornful of money, literature, athletic skill or beauty. You merely confess that it is beyond your reach.

The good opinion of the right people seems all important till you're about 20. After that it's not so vital—if you grow up.

Don't blame Junior if he hates to take his medicine. Ever since economic ill we have endured since the World War resulted from trying to evade or postpone our losses.

Hints On Etiquette

Formal daytime weddings and other occasions call for a man to wear black striped trousers, cut-away coat and tall silk hat. In case this costume is impractical or the affair not strictly formal, a sack coat worn with striped trousers and a soft felt hat are correct.

Correct. This sentence: "You shouldn't accept this policy," wrote the company official, "unless you are sure you can keep it paid up."

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

TEACH CHILD TO KNOW NATURE

You and I like people to remember our names. We are pleased by the salesman who does so. On the other hand, we are not attracted to people who forget our names. We also feel more happy when we recall another person's name and recall his name as we speak to him. Have you noticed that when you have forgotten a person's name after you have met him, or when you come across him a second or third time, how very unhappy you feel because you can't recall his name? As you know, we can be happier, make others happier, and make them like us better if we remember and often use their names when we are with them. Let us teach our children by precept and example in the art of remembering people's names.

Learn Nature, Too
Just as we and our children enjoy people better when we know their names, so we enjoy birds and flowers and trees better when we know their names. A bird means more to us as a robin, lark or wren than it means just as a bird. So does it mean more to our children. A flower is more precious as a tulip, marigold or rose than merely as a flower. So also is a maple, birch or elm far more enjoyable than only as a tree. It's so much finer to know a flower by its color, shape or fragrance; a bird by its feathers, flight or song; a tree by its leaves, bark or trunk. Though birds, flowers and trees can't talk to us, we can talk to them and feel their friendship as we know them by their names. Fortunate is the lot whose parents, older brothers, sisters or teachers will go with him into the woods, across the fields, beside the streams, up and down the hills and through the hollows, especially when these places are alive.

Can enjoy Them
If these pilgrims to the outdoors are good citizens, if they love the beautiful things about them, and if they want other people to enjoy these beautiful things, they are careful not to bother anybody or anything. They don't go where they should not go. They don't break down fences, nor trample down the crops. They don't steal the fruit and vegetables. They don't hurt the trees and flowers and plants. They don't throw stones at the birds. They look at all these beautiful things, enjoy them and talk about them. Best of all, they enjoy these beautiful things together.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

HE WILL DISCOVER

The store-keeper who started at the "old-cross roads" is back at the crossings of the ways. But now he is the big "the business man in America, and the roads that cross at his door are the great avenues of national distribution.

The era of the big "little business" man may be dated as beginning in 1938. He found himself unexpectedly in the spotlight of attention at Washington. If the President's conference of little business was chaotic it was normally so. There had been no rehearsal; there was no precedent.

But little business began to think of itself in big terms. It is the largest part of the mercantile business of the nation. Its economic life is important to all.

Already we have thirteen organizations of small businesses springing up throughout the nation and small business will face the same problems that have put wrinkles on the face of big business. Small business will be offered leaders, politicians and professional. Only the other day a "state convention" of nineteen delegates met in San Francisco, at the behest of a promoter who wanted to investigate all other small business organizations.

The merchants of American cities can accomplish great things for themselves if they unite on a constructive program. They will have to steer clear of the racketeer and the politician.

Small business faces problems of taxation, employee relations and legislation. To solve these problems leads down the road to progress. The highway of business antagonisms and hostilities leads to the swamp of distrust, where all business bogs down.

SLEET STORM

Old Winter brought the sleet last night. In heavy robes and staccato. The trees and shrubs were dressed.

On cedar, elm and pine were placed Great weights of crystal clear. And leaf and twig were all encased Within a bright veneer.

Some thought it was a lovely sight To see them thus arrayed. With jewels, glistening diamond white. Upon them heavy-laid.

But like a woman bent with years I saw my favorite tree Bowed down as if to hide the tears That such a jest could be.

It seemed a piteous sight to me To look at branches fair Struggling 'neath heavy finery They were not meant to wear.

Helping them to their feet.

Let me shine my best.

And I have shown my best
May some life be made happier

IT'S TRUE
We heard a speaker at a civic club meeting in Florida make the suggestion that communities should support their newspapers. Among other things he said:

"All organizations for community betterment required the co-operation of the newspaper before they could hope for any measure of success. 'The sorriest newspaper in the United States does more for its community than the finest community in the United States does for its newspaper,' he declared. He added that 'since the editor gives so much of his merchandise, which is space, to the community, it is only fair for the community to return this service the only way it can, by purchasing advertising space and subscriptions from the editor.'

A prominent actor was asked recently what attribute he admired most in women.

"Femininity" was his prompt reply.

I wonder what his reaction would have been had he been in the street car with me the other day. Across from me were standing three girls—possibly high school juniors—and no doubt ardent fans of the actor in question. They were very feminine in appearance. But when the car stopped suddenly, causing them to fall forward, one of these "sweet sixteen's" let out an oath that even most men would not emit publicly. She thought she was being sophisticated and modern. What do you think?

Reader's Question Answered
Dear Miss Markel: Please tell me how an announcement of a girl's engagement and marriage should be made when her parents are separated— not divorced—and live in separate cities, the girl making her home with her mother. AMY.

Answer—This matter is one that should be decided by you and your mother. It is perfectly proper to include your father's name in your announcements. However, if your mother's bitterness toward him is intense, she may issue all invitations and announcements in her name only.

WONDERING WHY

The woman had been accused of insanity by her husband and was being tried by the jury. When she took the stand in her own behalf, she was questioned by the prosecutor.

"You married your husband 10-years ago, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"You loved him then, did you not?"

"No."

"Then why did you marry him?"

"That is what I have been trying to figure out ever since."

The jury found the woman sane.

Mixup On Neutrality Law Noted
Nye Can Blame Hitler For Mess
Hate Hitler But Don't Like War

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON April 3—If Senator Gerald P. Nye's neutrality law is repealed or doctored into impotency the senator will have Herr Hitler to blame for it. That law, prohibiting the President from taking American sides in any overseas conflict and shutting off American military supplies from belligerent foreign nations, was fairly popular when it was enacted, two or three years ago. Congress wouldn't have passed it otherwise. Nye, who's a very effective investigator, had prepared the ground for it by an exceedingly telling quiz into activities of profectors in past struggles, and also a strong "never again" sentiment generally had prevailed as a heritage from Uncle Sam's participation in the last world conflagration.

The administration didn't overly like the thing, on the ground that it was calculated to prevent the White House from exercising its best judgment in situations of emergency. However, this attitude was widely attributed to executive jealousy of Nye's authority, there wasn't much legislative sympathy with it.

Didn't Work Well

Finally voted into the federal statute book the law didn't work at all well, either. Italy never admitted that it was at war in Ethiopia. The Spanish muss nominally (though not actually) has been a civil affair in the New art. And Japan continues to insist that war isn't what it's engaged in against China. Therefore it's been recognized that the regulation needed amendment—but with a view to making it stick; not for the purpose of nullifying it.

Indeed, only a few weeks ago, when it was revealed that the administration was sanctioning the sale of Yankee fighting planes to France, there was a howl to the purpose that we were developing unneutrality.

As a matter of fact, there was no violation of the Nye law, but the outcry wouldn't have been raised but for the predominance of our neutrality wishfulness.

In a mere matter of days a lot of this feeling has evaporated. A little of it is left. Senator Nye stands pat. Senator Henrik Shipstead is on record to the effect that the Versailles Treaty is responsible.

Now it's different — barring the comparatively few bundists. We don't like Hitler. We don't like his ways. We don't like his mustache—and that counts a little, and no fooling. We don't like his treatment of the Jews. Or his treatment of the Catholics.

We certainly didn't like his grab of little democratic Czechoslovakia. We don't like him in Latin America. And then, when he gobbled Prague, he scooped in $80,000,000 in gold there. Nobody wonders that Holland and Switzerland are shipping their gold over here to be buried in Kentucky. It isn't doubted that he'd dig it up from there too if he could get away with it.

The Kaiser had a modicum of formality in his highwaysmanship. Hitler is an unqualified yegg, as Washington's State Department estimates him.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

In 1895, the windows of the New York Hospital were sealed tight at the beginning of winter. Fresh air was regarded as dangerous, to be excluded whenever possible. Mollases was the chief item of diet and patients sometimes cooked their own meals on heating stoves in their wards. Carrot polities were used for cancer treatment.

Today these put blood into them. In 1938 it cost $66.38 to light the hospital with gas and candles, and $2.23 to heat it with wood and coal. In 1936, heat, light and power costs were $197,730.54. Operations were performed without anesthesia.

These facts are gleanings from a fascinating book, "So Near the Gods," published by the Society of the New York Hospital, which, in a history of the 160 years of that institution, epitomizes a bold and sweeping advance in humanitarian medicine and gives new assurance of ultimate triumph in the epic struggle of "Man Against Death," at least ultimately death.

This tall, white Maginot line against pain and death, at 525 East Sixty-Eighth Street, is one of the greatest hospitals in all the world, obviously not an exhibit in our playtime year of the "City of Tomorrow," but, in its vast organization of medical skills and techniques, it projects us far into a happier and safer tomorrow—as science, its leader and mentor, makes seven-league strides with such new triumphs as the amazing sulfanilamide.

In its backward look, the history of the hospital reveals what a grim backdrop of ignorance and slow faltering medical progress existed in olden days, and thereby brings into high relief the triumphant achievements of today.

In 1891, the first year the New York Hospital was opened to receive patients, a savage epidemic yellow fever swept the Atlantic seaboard. The story is sketched by Sigerist, the medical historian. We had learned little or nothing about protection from plagues in the sweep of three hundred years.

"Mad rumors were afloat as to means of protecting one's self," he wrote. "Women and children went about with huge cigars in their mouths. People chewed garlic all day long, or merely some in their pockets or their shoes. In many houses, gunpowder, tobacco or alum were constantly kept burning, or vinegar was sprinkled at intervals. People did not dare to walk along the walls of houses, but would run down the middle of the street to avoid poisonous exhalations. Regardless of class, the dead were buried without even the simplest funeral services. Thousands fell victims to the fever."

When Sir William Howe captured New York City, he used the hospital, then at Broadway and Worth street, for a military barracks. In 1788, John Jay and Baron Steuben were stoned while defending the hospital against a mob of hoodlums. By 1814, the hospital had become known as one of the world's leading schools of surgery, and from that time there was steadily built today's chronicle of enlightenment and progress. The year 1847 barked the first use of ether as an anesthetic in this hospital.

LOS ANGELES—Miss Mildred McAfee, president of Wellesley College, "Wellesley girls smoke, of course, but we have no cocktail bars on the campus."

CHICAGO—Melchior Wankowicz, author of a formerly official censor in Poland, believes war between his country and Germany is unlikely.

"Poland wants peace. But Germany as a close neighbor, knows the defensive power of Poland and its willingness to fight."

LONDON—Major Vernon Bartlett in an address on foreign policy indulges in a flight of fancy: "We shall not be able to enjoy ourselves until Franco's widow tells Stalin on his deathbed that Hitler has been assassinated at Mussolini's funeral."

Words Of Wisdom

A coquette is a woman without any heart, who makes a fool of a man that hasn't got any head.—Delany.

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION

A long-winded, prosy counselor was arguing a technical case recently before one of the judges of the superior court. He had drifted along in such desultory way that it was hard to keep track of what he was trying to present, and the judge just vented a very suggestive yawn.

"I sincerely trust that I am not unduly trespassing on the time of this court," said the lawyer, with a suspicion of sarcasm in his voice.

"There is some difference," the judge quietly observed, "between trespassing on time and encroaching on eternity."—Handed in.

IS SPEAKER AT CLEVELAND, OHIO

(International News Service)
CLEVELAND, April 3.—A message of hope for the rebirth of Czechoslovakia as a free and independent nation was left in Cleveland today by Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of the republic.

Dr. Benes and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York spoke before a cheering crowd of 10,000 persons in public auditorium at a meeting yesterday commemorating the birthday of Thomas Masaryk, founder of Czechoslovakia.

Blasting Hitler
The former Czechoslovak president declared his belief that "my country and my nation will reconquer soon again its freedom and independence and will emerge as brave and proud, as strong and courageous as it has always been in its history in previous centuries."

Blasting a Hitler, La Guardia declared:

"Czechoslovakia has been kidnapped, and when the kidnaper talks about a protectorate he talks the language of the kidnaper who talks about the safety of the child he is holding until he collects his ransom or murders the child."

Trinity Rector Is Preaching Tuesday

Rev. Pearson Will Be Heard At Noonday Service In Baptist Church

"A person ought to find peace in the church, if they do anywhere."

But, on the other hand, according to the record in the Bible, Tuesday in Holy Week was a day of challenge and conflict in the life of Christ. He enjoyed no peace on the last day of His public ministry.

What is the answer? Christ's authority was questioned. People question it today. Some prefer a dictator, some political fixing, others make their decisions in life on the basis of their popularity and social advancement. What claim has Christ on you? What is the source of His authority? Is it final? These are some of the questions the Rev. Philip C. Pearson, rector of Trinity church, will discuss tomorrow, Tuesday at the noonday service in the First Baptist church, which begins at 12:30 p. m. and lasts till one o'clock. He is the special preacher in the series conducted under the auspices of the New Castle Ministerial association in commemoration of Holy Week and leading up to Good Friday.

The service will be in charge of the pastor, the Rev. C. H. Heaton and will be preceded by an organ recital.

Tells How Board Strives To Maintain Good Library Here

Money, which the butcher and baker depend on to keep going, is also what keeps the wheels of the New Castle Free Public Library turning, Attorney William J. Caldwell, president of the library board of trustees, reminded citizens today.

When the wheels turn normally 800 books go out a day, 800 books are returned something like 21,851 persons use the reading rooms during a year, story hours are held for children, reference work goes on, 5,000 new books are received and catalogued in a year, old books are mended and a hundred and one incidental things go on.

Industry In Reality

Outwardly tranquil and serene, the library when one investigates the work it does, can be appreciated as a building housing an industry of tremendous activity.

"All of it costs money," President Caldwell declared. "Frequently someone who has discovered that the library costs between $25,000 and $30,000 to operate each year has expressed surprise at this figure. But when I have explained to him something of the extent of the use made of it and submitted to him a copy of the budget, I have never found anyone who has failed to appreciate the full value received by the city for its library money."

"Naturally, the acquisition of the present building has entailed an increase in library costs, but the trustees have every desire to maintain and increase its facilities and services although it may be impossible to do so within the limitations of its present budgeted income."

Tells Source Of Income

Caldwell reported that registrations at the new library spurred 55 percent in 1938 over 1937.

He discussed the source of the library income. He said that it receives but one-half mill on the assessed valuation of city property, which is of course, included in the property tax paid by property owners to the city treasurer.

In 1938 that tax yield was a little more than $21,000.

And while the library derives parking space rentals at the main library and rental money, too, from its old property on North Jefferson street, the library board is still in debt to the federal government for the new library building. That debt—$20,000—bears interest at three percent, and payment of that interest consumes most of the rental income the library receives.

Caldwell voiced the hope that some day the library grounds may be landscaped, but that work today, he said, would mean the sacrifice of important library services and activities.

He reported that to operate the library building today there are five trained librarians, five assistants and six pages. The latter are employed on a hourly basis and only part time. The rest are salaries employees. A building superintendent and an assistant are also on the payroll, and he said this group represents the minimum the board could employ to maintain the library on its present scale.

There are now 50,000 books on the library shelves here.

Plan For Public Inspection Days At Power Plant

Work is being rushed to complete the new power plant of the Pennsylvania Power Co. being erected on the Beaver River near New Castle. The plant, which will have an initial capacity of 35,000 kilowatts, is expected to generate current for the first time within the next three weeks.

It will, when completed, represent one of the most modern and efficient steam power generating units in the country. It will be a coal burning plant, and in addition to the operating force of the plant itself, will furnish steady employment to a large number of coal miners in producing the 300 tons of coal needed on an average each day.

The company has announced that an Open House will be held at the plant sometime in June, when all customers of the company in this and other districts will be invited to inspect the plant and see the interesting features of this modern generating station. Displays of various kinds are being arranged by the company, so that visitors may receive an interesting picture of the procedure by which electricity is generated and brought to the homes, farms and factories of this area.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Why do medical men venerate the memory of Hippocrates?

He is looked upon as the "Father of Medicine."

He first separated medicine from religion and philosophy.

People believed sickness was due to disfavor of the gods.

Hippocrates placed the responsibility on man.

He first examined a human being to diagnose his complaint.

He noted the color of the skin.

He looked at the eyes and facial expression.

He detected a temperature as evidence of illness.

Doctors are still doing what Hippocrates did.

Aided by a wealth of knowledge accumulated since then.

Doctors for 2,300 years have obeyed the Hippocratic code of ethics.

Around $350,000,000 is due to physicians for unpaid bills in the United States.

BEES MAY REQUIRE ADDITIONAL FEEDING

Although winter bee losses have been small, many colonies will starve before there is sufficient nectar to supply the needs of the brood unless considerable feeding is done.

Providing feed keeps colonies from starving and enables weaker colonies to rebuild their strength.

An excellent sugar syrup for the bees can be made by mixing 2 parts sugar with one part water. Dissolve the sugar in hot water until the syrup is clear and free of crystals. Colonies having less than three full frames of honey need sugar syrup.

Cool the syrup to room temperature and feed it to the bees toward evening. Pour the syrup into a friction top with eight hole punched in the lid. Invert the pail over the inner cover of the hive. A half-gallon pail is best.

The bees will take the syrup from the feeder any time that the temperature is above 55 degrees Fahrenheit. Some of the syrup will crystallize and close the holes if the weather turns cold and the feed is not removed for two or three days. Always remove the crystallized sugar when the temperature rises above 55 degrees.

The supply of feed needed for each colony varies. It is not unusual for a colony having little honey to use as much as seven pails of syrup.

Unless water is available within a half mile of the apiary, some should be supplied. An excellent method is to place a tub of water in a sunny location protected from the wind. Cork or pieces of wood floating on the surface will prevent the bees from drowning. Adding a small amount of salt will provide the bees with this necessary mineral.

Circular 141, "Beekeeping in Pennsylvania," which covers the problems of the beekeeper from the time the bees are obtained through marketing of the honey, can be obtained without charge at the agriculture extension association office in the Post Office Building, New Castle.

FRESH VEGETABLES ARE POSSIBLE EVERY MONTH

An abundant supply of vegetables can be grown in the home garden. By making out a simple schedule now and following it throughout the growing season, a family can have a supply of fresh vegetables every month. In addition to being tasty and healthful, they make possible a considerable saving in household expenditures.

If you have a large garden, the best way to get it ready for planting is with a team, plow and harrow. Prepare the garden as early as soil conditions permit so that seeds of onions, cabbage, peas, and spinach can be planted with the opening of spring.

It is always advisable to test your garden soil to determine whether it needs lime. An application of manure is suggested. Commercial fertilizers may be used advantageously at the rate of 800 to 1,000 pounds per acre, or one pound for each 40 to 50 square feet of broadcast before planting and worked deeply into the soil.

Light applications of fertilizer may be applied one inch below or alongside the rows of sweet corn, peas, or beans, and three inches deep near tomato or similar plants. Some commercial fertilizer mixtures as 4-12-4, 3-12-6, 4-16-4, or 0-14-6 give good results, where manure is applied annually, but 4-10-6, 5-10-5, or 4-8-8 is preferred when no manure is available. If rank growth occurs as a result of heavy animal applications of stable manure, it may be best to use only 16 or 20 per cent superphosphate.

Now only the best varieties of seeds. Leaflet 60, "Vegetable Varieties for Pennsylvania," published by the Pennsylvania State College, will simplify selection. Circular 120, "The Family Vegetable Garden," provides a wealth of information for the home grower.

Both leaflet 60 and circular 120 may be obtained without charge at the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Office, 206 Post Office Building, New Castle, Pa.

GOOD PASTURES REDUCE MILK PRODUCTION COST

The answer to lowered milk prices is the use of high-quality, home-grown feeds requiring a minimum cash outlay. Since expenditures for feed cover approximately 50 per cent of the cost of producing milk, this is one of the best points to begin an attempt to reduce production costs.

Good pastures produce excellent dairy feed of about 24 per cent protein at less than two dollars per ton. Many Pennsylvania pastures were almost worthless five years ago. Their owners have made them highly productive by applying lime, phosphate, and manure. They are returning approximately ten dollars for every dollar invested for these materials.

Pasture grasses provide low-cost feed. Cash expenditures are small and very little labor is needed. Every ton of feed grown on the farm reduces the amount of cash required for the purchase of other feeds.

Lawrence county dairy farmers have organized a county program because of their enthusiasm in pasture improvement and are actively offering encouragement to their neighbors. These farmers have learned that by spending three to four dollars each year per acre for lime, phosphate, and manure, they can secure $50 to $60 worth of feed per acre. At the same time they are controlling erosion and improving the fertility of their soils.

Farmers active in pasture improvement have learned that it is necessary to reseed old pastures, and that plowing is not essential. They know that results are obtained faster and cheaper by simply topdressing. Considerable land is being seeded for pasture in areas where a few years ago farmers hardly knew what it meant to pasture their stock.

High quality legume hay and legume silage to supplement good pastures certainly seem to be the dairyman's economic goal in his struggle against low milk prices. They are investments in the "land bank" that are sure to pay dividends.

Complete information on the county pasture improvement program may be obtained at the Agricultural Extension Office.

NUTRITIOUS LAMB CUTS LEND VARIETY TO MENU

With lamb of high quality being produced in abundance, it is important that we become better acquainted with the different cuts, Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative for Lawrence county, emphasizes.

We are all familiar with lamb chops and leg of lamb which are expensive cuts. Why not try cuts from the shoulder, breast, flank and neck? They are less expensive but just as nutritious, and with proper cooking can be made into savory dishes.

Cook lamb and mutton until they have reached the well-done stage as this improves the flavor. To help the meat retain its best, serve piping hot on a hot platter. The fat of lamb and mutton has a very high boiling point and as it cools it becomes "pasty." However, these meats are delicious when thoroughly chilled as the fat becomes entirely solidified.

It is best to leave the parchment-like covering on the leg of lamb when cooking. Miss Markle advises, since it tends to prevent the loss of juices, lessens the amount of shrinkage, and reduces the cooking time. This covering has no effect on the flavor of the meat.

When roasting lamb or mutton, use a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and allow 30 to 35 minutes to the pound, depending upon the thickness of the cut. An open pan with a rack is best to use. It is not necessary to add water or fat. The juices baste the meat as they are cooked from it.

For an inexpensive, nutritious dish, Miss Markle suggests trying—
Lamb Stew in Rice Ring

Two pounds lamb breast or shoulder, cut in small pieces.

Two tablespoons flour.
Salt and pepper.

Six small onions.
Six small carrots.

Two cups tomatoes.
Rice ring.

Have lamb cut in inch cubes. Dredge with flour and brown in hot oil. Season, add vegetables and water, if needed. Let cook slowly until done, about one and quarter hours. Serve in rice ring.

To make rice ring, pack cooked and seasoned rice into a well buttered ring mold. Let stand in a warm place for eight to ten minutes. Turn out on the hot platter and fill center with lamb stew. This recipe serves six persons.

SUBSTITUTE HONEY FOR SUGAR

Honey takes up moisture readily and holds it, so cakes, puddings, cookies, and candies made with it stay moist a long time. Honey may be substituted for sugar in a cake recipe but less liquid is needed because of moisture in the honey.

When medium-thick honey is used for half the sugar, reduce the liquid one quarter. If substituted for all the sugar, reduce the liquid one-half.

OPPOSES CANAL

Editor of the News,
New Castle, Pa.

Dear Sir:
I read with considerable interest the remarks of the Railroad Brotherhoods in regard to the proposed Lake Erie Canal. I sometimes doubt whether the people agitating the building of this canal ever saw one, or have any knowledge of the limitation of such transportation.

There are only two canals in the world that have ever paid their operating expenses. First, the Suez Canal, which connects the whole continent of Europe with that of Asia, and cuts off a seven or eight thousand mile voyage around the southern end of Africa. Second, our Panama Canal, which carries the combined commerce of the two Americas and also between America and Asia, and cuts off the dangerous 9,000 mile journey around the southern end of South America.

Nearer home, we have the Cape Cod Canal, which cuts off about sixty or seventy miles of the water transportation between New York and New England and avoids the dangerous water trip around Cape Cod. This canal was built a number of years ago with private capital and never paid its operating expenses, and the government finally took it over. Some six years ago, I took an auto trip through Cape Cod and in a ten hour stop off along the canal, there was only one steamer passed in that time.

There are a number of objections to canal transportation that are wholly overlooked and its use limited wherever it is in competition with other transportation.

In the first place, lake steamers cannot operate in the proposed canal. This would mean a transfer of all freight passing through the canal from lake steamers to canal boats. Again strange as it may seem, canal transportation is the most hazardous of world's transportation. This may be shown by the extraordinary precaution taken by the Panama Canal in passing ships through same. There are hundreds of men employed by the canal company in safely piloting ships through the canal.

Canal transportation is also very much limited by the fact that expensive machinery must be used in raising bulk freight from canal boats to manufacturing plants, or other means of transportation. In many of the lake ports, this is done by mechanical means costing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Canal transportation makes it absolutely necessary that you have an abundant supply of water at the upper levels of the canal. In the Lake Erie Canal, this can only be secured by making a very deep cut through the summit, and even with this, the water supply is uncertain.

Water transportation to be economical is wholly limited to industries located on the bank of the canal. If they are not, additional transportation means must be provided, and this destroys the economy of water transportation. To show how our large industries disregard such transportation may be mentioned by the fact, that the new works of the United Steel Corporation at Irvin do not have water transportation.

Let us get nearer home. The proposed canal would not pass New Castle, and in order to be of any benefit, we would have to move the city and our manufacturing plants down below Mahoningtown, otherwise all freight received over the canal would have to be brought to New Castle either by railroad, or trucks. This transfer of bulk freight would destroy any economy of the canal.

It is proposed to build this canal at the expense of the taxpayers. The shippers would only have to furnish the canal boats. If the government would build a four track railroad between the lakes and the Ohio, any railroad company would be glad to operate this road at freight charges that would transport freight at a rate that could not possibly be met by any canal transportation. Such a railroad would not only deliver freight along the line of the canal, but would deliver it to the tops of the hills, and the depression of the valleys of every manufacturing or business interest in the whole of Western Pennsylvania.

The limitation of this letter will only permit mention of a few of the limitations and expense of canal transportation.

Yours truly,
E. M. UNDERWOOD.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

Copyright 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Infectious diseases have a way of crowding in on us in the spring time. Most of them we have with all year, to some degree, but every spring we anticipate them especially.

Of course these spring outbreaks aren't anything like they used to be. I remember when the homes I visited used to be full of chicken-pox, whooping cough, scarlet fever, and the like. I used to think they afflicted the children then because the resistance was worn down by the long winter.

Perhaps this is the reason why, today, these infectious diseases aren't as prevalent as they were. The children of today have far greater resistance than our parents had when they were small. That is because we have learned how invaluable cod-liver oil and fruits and tomato juices are in building up the bodies, and because we have learned a lot about diets and vitamins.

I think sanitation has a lot to do with the improvement. Out in the country, particularly, there has been a complete change in the people insofar as sanitation is concerned. And people today have a greater knowledge of the advantages of fresh air and sunshine.

One of these diseases, widespread in its ravages, was scarlet fever, an illness more common in temperate zones; more common in the Northern than in the Southern states. It occurs from time to time in all cities, but rarely in such epidemics as we used to see it.

The disease is caused by a little, round-shaped bacteria called a streptococcus, one of the most dangerous bacteria known. The disease usually starts in the throat of the victim, with the patient first complaining that his throat is sore. His temperature goes up; he becomes feverish and ill. If the doctor is called—as he should be—at this early stage, he may have difficulty in diagnosing the trouble. He will, of course, be suspicious of that sore, red-looking throat, and he will probably take a culture of the back of the throat to see if streptococci are present.

Another symptom which, if present, will give your physician a clue to the trouble, is a heavily-coated tongue. Later this tongue becomes a bright, beefy red in color and the little papillae, or ridges along the side, will become large and prominent.

The rash which has given scarlet fever its name, doesn't make its appearance usually, until the second day of the illness. Until this rash does appear, the patient is very likely to be very sick. This has led to a very old practice throughout this country, arising, I suppose, because people discovered that the appearance of the rash coincided largely with an improvement in the patient. Grandmothers for years have been brewing concoctions to bring out this rash. The first day little Jimmy is pretty sick; the second day Grandma decides to take a hand. She brews a camomile tea, or something else she has heard about, gives it to the child, and presto; that day out comes the rash—it was coming, anyway—and Jimmy feels better.

I never say anything when I go to a house and they tell me how they brought the rash out in Jimmy. It wouldn't do any good if I did and, after all, they are just doing their best for him.

DOGS MUST NOT ROAM AT LARGE

City Will Probably Start Drive To Force Compliance With Law

Dogs, big and little, pedigreed and mongrel, roam thoroughfares of this city and it is likely that unless canine owners obey the law a more brisk campaign to rid the city of the roamers-at-large may be launched.

This was indicated today after a report was received from the city garbage department stating that, since January 1, 229 bodies of dead dogs were collected on streets and disposed of.

During the month of March the employees collected 77 of the canines and also the bodies of 27 cats, which report also shows that people also are permitting the cats, or bird-droppers, to roam.

The city has had on its payroll for some time a dog-catcher who works day and night. When dogs which are licensed are caught they are taken to the pound but may be reclaimed.

With garden and flower-making time here and garbage cans being upset by dogs, in some cases almost as large as Shetland ponies, it is small wonder that citizens raise objections.

City officials, especially Mayor Charles E. McGrath, takes the attitude that if a dog is worth owning the dog is worth taking care of and believes people should obey the law and keep dogs tied up.

Girl Scout Report Shows Fine Progress

Girl Scouting and good citizenship are synonymous, according to the content of the 1938 annual report for the national organization, which has been received by Mrs. F. E. Sowersby, Commissioner of the New Castle Girl Scout Council.

In her foreword, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, of New York City writes that the Girl Scout purpose is "to widen the opportunities for personal development as preparation for the private and public responsibilities of independent and responsive citizens. And never has the world been so in need of such citizenship, for on it depends the very life of democracy itself. There are now more than 500,000 Girl Scouts."

Reviewing the growth and development of Girl Scouting during the 27 years of its existence to its present active membership of 516,420 in 5,263 communities, the annual report tells a story of uninterrupted progress. It tells of the recent revision of program activities gauged to the needs of girls from seven to eighteen in this present day world, and of the chosen interests of these girls.

During 1938 the report tells of an increase of 74,456 members. New Castle's Scouts have shown a comparable increase, according to Mrs. Sowersby. There are now about 500 girls meeting in troops, an increase of 100. Last year 68 girls from here spent two weeks at Camp Kiondasha, and 91 attended Day Camp at Cascade Park. Mrs. Sowersby stated today that she expects an increase in camp attendance this summer.

According to the report, more than 10,000 small children found good times last year under the friendly guidance of Girl Scout Safety crusaders.

In the report of proficiency badges earned during 1938, it was learned that 83,704 Girl Scouts qualified for Homemaker badges, and Health and Safety badges went to 57,164, while 19,750 girls qualified for those badges included in the sports and games field.

In a statement for the first three months of the year, January, February and March, County Controller Frank W. Hill shows the expenditures of the county for the institution district. The total money expended amounted to $48,109.12.

For administration a total of $2,326.54 was spent, a little over half of which was for salaries for directors and clerk hire. For the county home $6,113.55 was spent.

Some of the larger items in this amount include $2,399.28 for groceries, meats, milk, etc. Salaries and domestic help, $994; coal, $1,028.42, with the balance being accounted for in incidentals.

Poultry feed for the county farm cost $15.70. Care of the insane cost $8,879.21, of which $4,289.43 went to Dixmont, $2,547.21 went to Torrance, $757.44 went to Polk, and the balance divided in small amounts to other institutions.

Outdoor relief cost $9,613.23. For hospital service (this for December, January and February) $3,963.11 went to the New Castle hospital.

and $1,945.35 went to the Jameson Memorial hospital, and $437 to the Ellwood City hospital.

Redemption of bonds took $19,000 and interest on bonds $2,047.50.

Only one sentence was handed down Saturday morning in the courthouse. Owen Ransome was placed on probation for three years upon payment of the costs in his case.

He pleaded to a charge of breaking and entering.

Saturday was audits and accounts day in both courtrooms. Auditors and executors of estates made their reports to the court of estates which had been settled.

Since the appointment of Edwin O. Reed as superintendent of state highways, no additional appointments have been made in the welfare office to fill the vacancy. M. B. Hogue was promoted from assistant to director and it has been found that with the reduction in county relief demands the work has been handled just as well without any increase in the force.

If you have any idea of snaring a few wild trout on April 15 or during the season, better get your license now. Already 300 fishermen and women have taken out their licenses, but about the 14th the rush will be on.

The columns on the front porch of the courthouse will soon be treated to a bath of sand. A sand-blasting machine will be used to clean the dirt and grime off the columns to be in keeping with the new paint job on the courthouse.

In the office of the prothonotary and clerk of courts the following actions have been taken:

Antonio Masucio files a scire facias sur mortgage against Clara M. Carpenter. Edys M. Stuckenholz, Paul C. Reynolds, Esther McBride and Emily G. Honkoren for the satisfaction of a mortgage totalling $2,293.67.

Grace E. Roeder of New Castle asks divorce from her husband, Carl C. Roeder, on the grounds of desertion. They were married July 7, 1935.

DR. BENNETT IS INITIAL SPEAKER

Today from 12:30 to 1 p. m., the first of a series of Holy Week services sponsored by the New Castle Ministerial Association was conducted in the First Baptist church, East and North streets, with Rev. G. S. Bennett, D. D., of the First Christian church, as the initial speaker.

The services will be in Trinity and St. Andrew's Episcopal churches, First Christian and Mahoning M. E. churches. Seven ministers will preach at each church on "The Seven Words from the Cross."

Reports from Philadelphia, Pa., tell of the same efforts being put forth for the observance of Good Friday in the Quaker City by the Citizens Good Friday Committee as those of the New Castle Ministerial Association here. In both places, business houses are being asked to close from 12 M. to 3 p. m., and those unable to do so are asked to permit employees who so desire to attend church services at that time. Theaters will also be asked to remain closed from 12 to 3.

Gardeners Are Already At Work

Some Of Finest Gardens In Area Cultivated Each Year Near Ward

Saturday saw quite a number of gardeners out setting their ground ready for planting in this district, and a few of them were planting some of the hardier plants.

Most of this work was going on just outside the ward in the garden plots along the Willow Grove road. Each year some fine gardens are produced in this section, and the farmers' pride themselves in their work.

NEWS BRIEFS IN WARD DISTRICT

Street signs in the Seventh ward are certainly not complimentary to the city. An inspection of the signs disclosed that every sign along North Liberty street, is rusted and bent out of shape, giving a bad appearance to strangers, and making streets difficult to find.

Workmen stringing the 15 miles of cable on the new high tension towers from the Cedar street sub-station to the new plant at West Pittsburgh are making excellent progress. Many persons delight in watching the workmen climbing about on the high towers.

Home owners in the ward are reported to be doing quite a bit of repair work to their property. Many are painting and repairing, while others are having remodeling work done. There are a few new garages being built in the ward.

GIRL RESERVES MEET IN SCHOOL

Girl Reserves of the Mahoning Junior high school, held a meeting in the school on March 30. Geraldine Stevenson was in charge of the devotional period.

The girls spent a portion of the meeting working out a test on "How to Act in Public." The girls also worked on Easter favors to send to the hospitals for the shut-ins.

Scribe, Irene Carlin.

Hubbell Going Back To Memphis

Star Giant Flinger Will Get Arm Looked At By "Doc", Dick Bartell On Shelf

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 3—The National league continues to do things differently . . . whereas the American league race shapes up a little tighter this season because the contenders for the New York Yankees title are stronger, over in the other circuit the top clubs seem bent upon keeping pace with each other by getting weaker.

No sooner had the New York Giants announced that pitcher Carl Hubbell was going back to Memphis to have his ailing arm worked on, then the champion Chicago Cubs revealed that shortstop Dick Bartell had been ordered to Chicago for an examination of his rheumatic left ankle . . . From the way things are going, the Cincinnati Reds will breeze in . . . if Johnny Vander Meer doesn't persist in being a hospital case.

And while yesterday's headlines were telling the sad news about Bartell on the one hand, they were proclaiming on the other that shortstop Billy Jurges had belted a home run for the Giants . . . That seems to be one trade Manager Terry made to his own best interests . . . Bartell and others went to the Cubs in that mid-winter deal for Jurges and others.

Bunny and His New Racket

H. W. "Bunny" Austin, foremost British tennis player, arrives in New York with his new-type racket. He said he came over not only to play tennis, but to prepare for a national moral rearmament campaign in America.

Rambling Around World Of Sports

Local sport stuff . . . Scoop parade: One of the county class B schools will have a new football mentor next fall. He is a former Westminster college grader, serving as captain only a couple of years ago. The present coach will devote all his time to basketball . . . Henry Marshall, 22-year-old Hillsville diamond star, steps up a notch higher in the baseball world, tying up with Erie in the Middle-Atlantic league this season. Marshall has the makings of a major leaguer, being a good hitter as well as an unusually talented outfielder. He batted an even .300 last season. One of his most noteworthy feats was stealing 36 bases. He pilfered the home plate on 14 occasions. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Marshall.

Note: This is the tenth of a series of articles dealing with prospects of various major league teams. Philadelphia Athletics—Connie Mack, the 76-year-old mentor, is stressing accent on youth in the hope that his once mighty Philadelphia Athletics, who were equivalent to the present New York Yanks during 1929-30 and 31, will ascend from the cellar to the attic. Some 38 players comprise Mack's roster. Of this number, 24 are under 25 years of age. Mack believes that baseball is a young man's game. With this in mind, the aging mentor has corralled as many youngsters as he could get his hands on in the hope that they will bring him another flag. The pitching staff has some rough customers in George Caster, Lynn Nelson, Buck Ross and "Chubby Dean". Edgar Smith, Bud Thomas, Gumpert and LeRoy Parmelee, up again, this time from Minneapolis, comprise the flinging section. Mack has no catching worries in Brucker, Hayes and Wagner. Besides being a good handler of pitchers, Brucker waves a wicked war club.

Mack's infield can be compared to a slice of Swiss cheese. Dario Lodigiani played a little of everything last year. At second he ended up with a .953 fielding average, chalking up 21 miscues. "Skeeter" Newsum was seriously injured last year and his chances for success are problematic. The acquisition of Bill Lillard from San Francisco is supposed to give Mack an unusually well balanced infield. Lillard's success is also questionable, since he has a "trick knee". Joe Gantenbein and Bill Nagel, a pair of rookies, are hanging around as infield insurance. The way Mack juggles around his players, you can't tell which position a player will occupy. Finney, Brucker, Lodigiani and company played a little of everything last season.

As for the outfield, Mack has all the reasons in the world to stick out his chest. Bob Johnson and Wally Moses are good enough to play with any team in the majors. Johnson plastered out 39 homers in compiling a .313 average while Moses belted out a .307 figure. Lou Finney and Sam Chapman, the ex-footballer, divided the outfield job. Chapman being sent away for a little more seasoning. Still, he clubbed out 16 homers. Finney finished up with a .275 mark. Dee Miles and Herb Barna come highly touted. Connie Mack figures that a crop of young hustling ball players should give him a winning team. Like their neighbors, the Phillies, the Athletics have everything in common, they even play in the same park now. Mack may lift his team out of the cellar, but if he goes above seventh place, he'll be a miracle man. As for chances of a flag, not one in a million, not in the same league with the Yanks, Red Sox Tigers and Cleveland.

Skipper round the sports world . . . Johnny Vander Meer did quite well, thank you, in his initial year in the big show. The pitching sensation drew down a cool $20,000 . . . I suppose you noticed that Joe DiMaggio blasted out more extra-base hits than singles in the first 12 games played by the Yanks in the Grapefruit Belt . . . Lou Nova, who will soon tackle Maxie Baer, has lost but one professional fight in 26 starts. Maxie Rosenbloom, who has dumped plenty of good boys, scored the lone triumph over the coast sensation, Carl Shavely, Cornell gridironist, is trying something new. He has ordered his grid candidates to "ride bikes" over the university's broad 1,000 acre campus to build up their legs before the start of the spring training season, April 10 . . . Joe Jacobs, pilot of Tony Galento, well known back buster, suds bibbler and now a thespian, has managed six world's champions, which is a record.

Aid for Jumpers?

Johnny Wilson

First it was the "kicking toe" for football players. Now it's the "jumping toe" for track and field participants. The gadget, exhibited by Johnny Wilson of Southern California in this picture, is a horseshoe-shaped piece made of duraluminum. Invented by Hal Smallwood, former U. S. track star, the spikeless gadget prevents the jumper from sinking into the earth, thereby gaining valuable "lift."

Third U. P. Not Champions Yet

Due to a misunderstanding, it said in The News Saturday that the Third U. P. basketball team was the junior church league champs, and it so happens that it is a three-game series for the title and not one game as originally believed.

The Third U. P. and Wesley M. E. will play their second game of the current championship series at the "Y" tonight at 7:15 o'clock, and if the Third U. P. wins, it will be all over, however, if Wesley M. E. wins it will tie up the series at one each.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

With trout fishing season not far distant, some of the boys who like to use fly-rods are manufacturing their own brand of lures, and according to reports there are quite a few adepts at lure-making here. One of those who uses practically none but of his own making is E. C. Stitt of R. D. 5. One of the best bass lures the writer has yet seen was made from a clothespin painted black and given the name "black death". It was given a tryout near the old swinging bridge in the Ne-shannock north of Volant several years ago. Despite savage attacks it is yet useful. From now on many fishermen will spend their evenings at home examining their rods, lines, lures and speculating what the future holds for them.

Don't Be Surprised If You Catch Tagged Trout

(Special To The News)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. April 3—Don't be surprised if you catch a trout with a tag around his lower jaw bone this spring. The trout will be a bit of a project under the joint supervision of the Pennsylvania State College and Pennsylvania Fish Commission to determine what happens to trout after they are "planted" in a stream.

Approximately 3,000 trout have been released in Spring Creek, in Centre County, from the Pleasant Gap fish hatchery. Before release each fish was tagged. The jaw tag method was used.

Each tag bears a serial number and the letters "Penn." It is fastened to the fish around the left mandible. The total length of each trout was recorded at the time of the tagging.

DODGERS SEEK HURLING STARS FROM PHILLIES

CLEARWATER, Fla. April 3—High prices put on his players by Gerry Nugent of the Phillies were seen today as blocking attempts by Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers to obtain pitchers Hugh Mulcahey, Claude Passeau and Al Hollingsworth and outfielder Herschel Martin. The trade winds seem to be blowing towards the Chicago Cubs, according to Dodger beliefs. The Dodgers lost 4 to 4 to the Detroit Tigers who scored four markers in the seventh inning.

IF and when you attend the New York World Fair why not make your trip through Pennsylvania as long as possible. You won't in all your travels see any sights that will compare with these here in our own state. We will say that other states might have a different sort, but when you compare them... Pennsylvania we believe is far out in front. After your trip this summer... we hope that your idea will be the same.

Housewife, attention! Read the classified ads daily for cleaning and repair help. It costs less and it's much easier than going through the city directory. Also use the classified ads to turn used furniture into cash... you have something that someone else wants. Use this page to find the right person.

Market Rallies
In Early TradingSome Of Large Gains At Opening Are Pared Somewhat Later

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, April 3.—The stock market rallied 1 to more than 3 points at the opening today, but gave up a portion of its gains after initial buying had been taken care of.

Allied Chemical did better than the general list, soaring 5 points at one time, then giving up 2 of this.
The stock market broke 6 points
Saturday in an otherwise strong market.

Eastman Kodak was independently weak today, breaking more than 5 points in a thin market for the issue on the downside.

Westinghouse's extreme gain of 3½, was pared to about a point.
Montgomery Ward had a betterthan-a-point advance cut to a modest fraction. Philip Morris dropped a point of an early 3-point runup, and Anaconda lost about half of a jump of more than a point. These were typical of general market movements.

Bethlehem U. S. Steel, Santa Fe
American Smelting and Standard Oil of N. J. were among the leaders to retain advances of a point or more. Johns-Manville, U. S. Gypsum, Air Reduction and Case each were up about 2 points.

DuPont converted a point gain into an equal loss, and Union Pacific also slipped a point after moving up fractionally.

Threats Land
Two Behind BarsPatrolman Hillers Shows One Man His Remarks Are Not Acceptable

Patrolman Peter Hillers jailed Oscar Lavich yesterday despite the attempt of Lavich to prevent Hillers from doing this. However, Oscar landed in the jail and because he allegedly was drunk and resisted the officer Mayor Charles E. McGrath apparently was in no hurry to hear his case in police court this morning. Obviously His Honor was permitting said Oscar to cool down behind iron bars as part punishment.

According to Patrolman Hillers' report to Police Chief Ralph R. Criswell, Lavich was said to have inquired of Hillers: "Why the—don't you die. You're no good, anyhow."

Hillers either didn't like Lavich's suggestion about leaving the presence of his wide circle of friends, or desired to dispute the last statement and show Lavich how "good" he was physically by landing Oscar at headquarters.

Just before Oscar was locked up he was reported by other officers to have threatened Hillers, a remark which also was jotted down in the report as part of the evidence to be heard in police court this afternoon.

Another chap who was in a reported quarrelsome mood yesterday was, allegedly one George Whie,
Mrs. Appellonia Dziadziura, 9 East Terrace avenue, where Whie is said to be a boarder, didn't like his reported threats.

She summoned police, who took Whie, a shotgun and an axe, the two latter instruments, which the officers claim they found in his room to headquarters. Mayor Charles E. McGrath in police court fined Whie $5.00, for his threats and ride in one of the "Blue-White" cars to the stationhouse.

are asked for the taking of certain chattels belonging to the plaintiffs.

Raub and Erna M. Raub against the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission is up for trial. This is an appeal from an award of the commission in the Edenburg viaduct improvement.

bert Blaine, mill worker, Mahoning

Council Informed
Of Gasoline Tax
Parley WednesdaySession In Pittsburgh—Other Matters Before Council Session This Morning

Council was advised by telegram from Mayor Cornelius Scully, Pittsburgh, at the session this morning that a gasoline tax meeting will be held in Pittsburgh on Wednesday.
Mayor Charles E. McGrath was requested to attend the session. The local law-makers have expressed the opinion often the city should receive what the city considers their proper share of the gasoline tax. It is probable the city's chief executive will attend the meeting.

Police Bill Hearing
Members of council were advised by H. A. Earley, chairman of the committee of municipal corporations, this morning that a public hearing will be held in Harrisburg,
Tuesday, relative to House Bill 189.
It concerns police appointments, promotions, reductions and removal of paid members in police departments.

Recommend Purchase
During council meeting this morning the solons voted four to one, Dunlap dissenting, to buy a tractor-mower for Sylvan Heights, golf course from E. H. Griffith, Pittsburgh, at a cost of $1,690. Councilman Dunlap expressed the opinion the price was too high to pay for the equipment.

Director of Parks Alexander said every point was considered and the committee decided it would be most advantageous to buy the Toro master tractor and Toro Trojan mower.
He said the tractor may be disconnected from the mower and used separately. He said he believed it would last for years.

An ordinance providing for the purchase was introduced, sent to then reported favorably from committee.

Against Federal Tax
Council went on record, Rice not voting, against a proposed federal statute placing a federal tax on municipal bonds. The state now pays four mills tax. Finance Director Fink asserted. The cost to the city in 1938 was $2,000, he added.
Councilman Rice declared that he is opposed to tax exempt bonds, charging that "the rich now load their safes with tax exempt bonds." Colleagues pointed out to Rice that were a federal tax placed on the municipal bonds it would heighten interest rates when the city attempts to sell bonds. Rice refused to vote, stating "I don't know enough about this yet to vote now." Colleagues voted opposition to the proposed federal tax.

Another Paving Step
City law-makers today took another step toward creating improvements and employment when they reported from committee bills which provide for the curbing and paving

Auto Victim's Death Is Probed

Coroner Byers Conducts Inquiry In Death Of James C. Patterson

DEATH IS HELD TO BE ACCIDENTAL

After hearing testimony of witnesses in connection with the automobile collision which resulted in the death of James C. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, on March 18, a coroner's jury brought in a verdict that neither driver was able to avoid the collision that resulted in Mr. Patterson's death, practically absolving William F. Offutt, of Slippery Rock, driver of the other car, for any blame.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Charles Piper Byers in No. 1 court room at the court house, Saturday afternoon.

Edward D. Buhler, state motor policeman, testified that he was called to the scene of the crash, 6.3 miles east of the city on Route 108, at 3:50 p. m. on March 18. Arriving at the scene, he found that Mr. Patterson had been carried into the Brown home, at the scene of the accident, and that the others who had been injured had been removed to the Jameson Memorial hospital. Mr. Patterson was dead when he arrived at the scene, Mr. Buhler stated.

He stated that the collision had occurred about 150 feet east of a curve in the roadway, and that the road was in a very slippery condition. Apparently the collision had occurred just a few inches over the center line of the highway on the north side of the road. He could find nothing at the accident scene to show which driver had been at fault.

It had been practically a perfect head-on collision, he stated. William F. Offutt, aged 20, of Slippery Rock, driver of the car which had collided with Mr. Patterson's, stated that he had been in New Castle doing some shopping. With him was his brother, Robert, aged 13, and Augustus Bowers, of Slippery Rock.

They had started for Slippery Rock about 3:30 o'clock and were driving at a speed of around 40 miles an hour. As they were leaving the curve at the accident scene, the rear end of the car swung to the right, throwing the front of the machine towards the center of the road. He said he pulled the wheels in the direction of the skid to try to straighten it up, but was unable to do so, and the right front of the car collided with the oncoming machine driven by Mr. Patterson.

The two other occupants of the car told virtually the same story. Mrs. Amy Patterson, widow of James C. Patterson, stated that they were enroute to Bessemer, Pa., to visit their son. Their car was traveling about 30 miles an hour, she stated. As they approached the curve, they suddenly appeared in front of them and they were struck almost at the same time. The jury which heard the testimony was composed of A. Herman Siegle, Albert W. Snyder, Paul J. Raisley, J. Don Bartlett, Charles E. Allen and David J. Marshall.

Knights Templar Complete Plans For Service Easter Morn

Rev. William V. McLean Will Deliver Brief Sermon At Cathedral Service

Plans have virtually been completed by Lawrence Commandery No. 62, Knights Templar, and the other commanderies of Eighth Division for the first early Easter morning resurrection service, which will be conducted at 8:15 o'clock Easter Sunday morning in The Cathedral. Sir Knight and Rev. William V. McLean, pastor of the First M. E. church, will deliver a brief sermon and will be assisted in conducting the service by Dr. John J. McIlvaine, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Rev. G. S. Bennett, pastor of the First Christian church. W. Scott Sample of Phoenixville, Pa., will play a trombone solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" as the resurrection call.

There will be a brief prelude of organ music from 8 to 8:15 o'clock, and the program will be concluded at 9:15 o'clock in order to permit those attending to return to their own churches for Sunday school and church services.

Had a citizen been alert recently a suspected burglar would have been captured according to Police Chief Ralph A. Criswell and Detective's Chief Ray Showalter. A citizen reportedly heard a noise but did not investigate immediately. When he heard the noise a second time he did investigate. The intruder became alarmed and escaped in the darkness. Had the man telephoned immediately to police when he heard the noise Officers Plimmer and Harper, who were in a cruiser car only one block from the scene of the attempted breaking and entering could have been radioed and within a minute's time would have been at the home where the action occurred, Criswell and Showalter stated.

Revised Quota For W. P. A. Given

About 20,000 To Be Dropped From Rolls In State By April 8

By ARTHUR C. WIMER (Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Revised WPA state quotas for April call for dismissal of about 20,000 workers in Pennsylvania by April 8.

According to most recent available figures, 240,477 persons were on Pennsylvania WPA lists as of March 11. Some days ago WPA Administrator Harrington sent out word that as a result of the $150,000,000 slash in WPA funds voted by Congress early this session, Pennsylvania's quota would be cut to 205,766 jobs in April. This would have meant dismissal of about 35,000 workers.

On the basis of the $100,000,000 in additional money voted by the House of Representatives last week, however, Colonel Harrington has revised Pennsylvania's authorized quota for April upward to 220,510. This represents an increase of about 15,000 jobs over the April quota fixed some days earlier and reduces to approximately 21,000 workers the necessary dismissals in the Keystone State.

Colonel Harrington has instructed the Pennsylvania Administrator to place this new quota in effect by April 8.

News Briefs From City Hall

Edward Umbright, superintendent of the collection and disposal of garbage, here today stated that during the month of March employees collected the dead bodies of 77 dogs, 27 cats and four pigs.

Apparently boys were on their good behavior during the current week only a few being lectured by Mayor Charles E. McGrath in city juvenile "court" Saturday. They were ordered before His Honor for having participated in pranks considered outside the pale of what they are permitted by law to do to expend pent up energy.

Marion J. Young, police headquarters desk sergeant, is on the 8 a. m. - 4 p. m. turn for two weeks.

William Black, 422 York way, Sharon, reported to police he was driving his auto early this morning north in Highland avenue, near Summer avenue, and that a piece of cement from the curb which had been broken off was in the car way. One of the tires struck the missile and the extent of $15. Black told police. Street Commissioner John Brettell investigated the reported occurrence this morning.

Automobile owned by Mrs. Ed Sullivan, 19 West North street, which was stolen from the garage in Elm street April 1, was found April 2, in Moravia street, police were told.

Police here have been requested to search for Katherine Spohn, 31, Butler, who has been missing from her home since March 24.

Another automobile was jacked up and a wheel and tire stolen Saturday night in Taylor street, according to a report made by Paul Cuba, 407 Spruce street. He parked the car there, he reported, and some time later found the wheel and tire missing. Theft of wheels and tires has become frequent recently according to reports at police headquarters.
